DOCTORS, PATENT MEDICINES, NEWSPAPERS.

All kinds of appeals reach the desk of the editor of a newspaper. He is looked to to help every good cause, and he is usually, we believe, glad to do so. He is bamboozled into helping many a bad cause through not understanding it in all its phases until his assistance has been rendered. He is appealed to not purely selfish reasons to sever the interests of his own usually depleted exchequer in furthering measures and causes which are primarily of interest to somebody else.

In the latter class do we place a communication just received. It comes on the letter-head of the president of the California Press association from Berkeley, California. It is an appeal by the newspapers of that state for united support in killing a bill introduced by a Los Angeles doctor in the legislature of that state against printing the advertisements of patent medicines and quack doctors and the like.

You naturally ask, Why should this be sent to the editor of Michigan newspapers? Simply because at the bottom of this sheet, in heavy-faced type, after a hand calling your attention to it, are the following words: "The above letter to the California newspapers is of equal interest to the newspapers of Michigan, which should begin at once to fight House Bill 220 and Senate Bill 133, which are well on the way to become laws." The organizer of the California newspapers had the fairness to sign his name and tell exactly where he might be found. But there is no signature or other means of identification of the parties making use of this letter in Michigan. Hence we do not know its author in Michigan, or from whence it emanated. We presume the patent medicines and quack doctor bunch are back of it, without wishing this to be known.

The California letter, thus adopted by somebody in Michigan to further their own ends, pledges the joint opposition of the newspapers of California to the bill which is up there, because it would result "in cutting the newspapers of the state out of thousands of dollars' worth of advertising." This letter goes on further to say: "The oath of a majority of the medical colleges binds its graduates not to advertise. Doctors generally look upon advertising as disreputable and any doctor who uses the columns of a newspaper is denounced as a fakir, although many of the high-class, honest, conscientious physicians do."

"There are others who would limit the sale and even the use of remedies to those prescribed by themselves and for which they have received the usual fee. Such doctors would prevent anyone from seeking health except through the regular methods of a regular physician and after the payment of a regular fee. The bill is unfair, as it would permit newspapers and periodicals published outside of this state and containing such advertising to circulate in the state, while California newspapers would have their revenue cut off. The bill makes an exception in favor of medical journals, which is unfair."

"Many newspapers refuse to accept advertising which is objectionable, and the list of such newspapers is growing greater. The drug prescribed by the doctors is no better than the drug in a proprietary remedy. The fear instilled into a person by a doctor is just as injurious as the fear instilled by an advertisement. A poor man cannot afford to pay the fee of the doctor and then a double price for the remedy. Every proprietary remedy was at some time a doctor's prescription, and, being compounded more scientifically, is liable to be better than the prescription of the ordinary doctor compounded by the ordinary druggist."

No doubt a good many thousands of dollars a year are paid out to the newspapers for advertising patent and proprietary medicines, and we regret to say the ads of quack doctors, as well. And the newspapers in the smaller country districts, like those in which the Press and the Ypsilanti circulate, need the money. It is easy money, as a rule. It is obtained by running plate matter, ordinarily all set up and ready to be inserted in the forms, and a better price is paid for it ordinarily than obtained for matter of local advertising concerns which has to be set and reset every day or two.

The doctors on the other hand furnish very little money to the ordinary newspaper, while the ordinary newspaper on the other hand is constantly running in its news columns items of value for the honest practitioner. But the newspaper which stumbles on the effect which a proposition of this kind has upon its exchequer and forgets the public aspects of it does both the paper and the public a distinct injustice. We are not attempting to cut out all objectionable patent and proprietary medicine ads and quack doctors' ads in order to keep the money ordinarily paid out for doctors' bills in the coffers of our own community, to be paid out to our own local physicians, but because we believe in the doing so we are performing a distinct service to the public at large.

In most communities like ours the doctors and the veterinary surgeons and the dentists and all the professional men run a card as a complimentary expression of cooperation and support to the local newspaper, usually struggling along for an existence, expecting of course to get some value in return no doubt for the running of the card. When the Ypsilanti Press was started, this expression of cooperation was accorded it. It was formerly accorded to the Ypsilanti. So far as we know, the present management has never suggested the propriety of it to the professional men of our city, so we are not endeavoring to take a dig at our professional brethren in our home city for not continuing the support which they once granted the local press.

The trouble with the most of these patent proprietary medicines and the ads of the quack doctors is that they make such extravagant claims that it is physically impossible for them to be carried out. They induce people who may be ailing, or may not, to think that they are and then induce them to enter upon a protracted line of treatment which in the end simply separates them from their money and leaves them often than otherwise worse off than when they commenced, while, on the other hand, the family physician is their neighbor. You can see on his walls his diplomas. You talk with your neighbors as to how he has helped them. He helps to share your burdens and vexations. He has some other regard for you than the amount of fees he will get from you. You and he are neighbors and expect to remain such. You are neighbors at the polls. Your children and his are neighbors in the schools. You are neighbors in the lodges, in the churches, and in all of the various activities which cooperate in making your own community life and in preserving it. He is a counselor and a friend in regard to maintaining your good health and in restoring it when you perchance become sick. He can be informed of all the hereditary tendencies of which your system is heir. He can intelligently diagnose your case and your needs. He will tell you if you wish the proportion of each drug he is prescribing and why he is prescribing it, and your prescription druggist, if he is competent, can verify this for you at the drug store.

On the other hand, you rarely if ever know what the contents of a patent or proprietary medicine is and, even if told, the general terms which are applied if ever, you would have no intelligent understanding of what you were taking after all. And the idea of being able to concoct under one formula and put in a single bottle that which is warranted to cure diseases of the heart, liver, stomach, kidney, bladder, rheumatism, neuralgia, and all chronic diseases is so utterly preposterous upon its face as to be a sufficient reason for refusing to have anything to do with it.

There are some good patent medicines and some good proprietary medicines. Some of them are even prescribed by physicians, we are informed, while others are permitted to be used by physicians. We do not condemn them all; but we are disposed to believe that if some doctor-legislator can succeed in California and in every other state in killing off the most of them, or even all of them, he will be doing the public at large a lasting service. And the surest way to kill them off of course is to cut the main artery of advertising in the newspapers.

A PRAYER FOR THE BABIES.
O God, since Thou hast laid the little children into our arms in utter helplessness, with no protection save our love, we pray that the sweet appeal of their baby hands may not be in vain. Let no innocent life in our city be quenched again in useless pain through our ignorance and sin. May we who are mothers or fathers seek eagerly to join wisdom to our love, lest love itself be deadly when unguided by knowledge. Bless the doctors and nurses, and all the friends of men, who are giving of their skill and devotion to the care of our children. If there are any who were kissed by love in their own infancy, but who have no child to whom they may give as they have received, grant them such largeness of sympathy that they may rejoice to pay their debt in full to all children who may have need of them.

Forgive us, our Father, for the heartlessness of the past. Grant us great tenderness for all babes who suffer, and a growing sense of the divine mystery that is brooding in the soul of every child. Amen.—Walter Rauschenbusch in the National Magazine.

POTATOES—MICHIGAN VS. MAINE.

That the Michigan potato growers do not obtain the yield they should can be seen from the fact that the average yield for Michigan in the past ten years has been 85 bushels per acre, while in Maine, where climate is similar and soil is in no way superior, the average yield is 225 bushels per acre and in one county in which a very large part of the crop is produced the average yield is 275 bushels.

In Maine the farmers avoid planting potatoes twice in succession in the same ground, but grow clover, oats and potatoes in rotation. In Michigan, especially in the northern part, where conditions are hardly right to use commercial fertilizers as extensively as they are used in Maine, farmers should do all they can to keep up fertility by the use of clover and stable manure.

Come in next Saturday, May 13, and get a glass of Leggett's Orangeade. It will cost you nothing and you are not required to make any purchase. Weinmann-Matthews Co., 118 Congress street.

PREPARING GROUND FOR THE CORN CROP.

By J. A. JEFFERY,

SOIL PHYSICIST OF THE MICHIGAN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

THE ideal soil for corn in Michigan is an open loam. As a matter of fact corn is grown successfully in soils ranging from a sandy loam to a rather heavy clay loam. A dark loam is more satisfactory than a light-colored loam. The darkness in color indicates the presence of organic matter, and the organic matter is helpful in two ways: First, it increases the soil's capacity for capillary water, and second, it improves the capacity of the soil to gather the warmth coming in the form of the sun's rays.

Corn should be grown in rotation. No crop succeeds itself in ordinary practices without a reduction in yield. The rotation should include one or two years of clover. The clover is instrumental in increasing the supply of nitrogen, and it appears to render other plant foods more available. In addition, this system of rotation is such that the texture of the soil is materially modified and the ventilation and natural drainage are greatly improved. The corn should follow the clover. No other crop seems to be able to take so complete advantage of the benefits derived from the clover crop as the corn.

An ideal preparation of the soil for corn is as follows:

The clover should not be pastured too close during the fall previous to the planting of the corn.

The plowing should be done very late in the fall or very early in the spring. If the plowing be done in the fall the field should be top-dressed with barnyard manure during the winter or early spring.

As soon as the soil is in condition in the spring, it should be gone over with a disc harrow and almost immediately after with a spike-tooth harrow, and from this time on until planting time should be frequently harrowed, using one or both tools, according as they may be required to keep the ground thoroughly mellow and smooth.

If the plowing be done in the early spring, the plow should be followed by the roller and the harrow, after which the top dressing should be applied at the same rate as if the plowing had been done in the fall. From time to time, until the time of plowing, the harrow should be used to prevent any surface packing of the soil.

The object of applying the manure as a top dressing is three fold: First, when applied as top dressing it lies where the transformations take place more readily by which the fertilizing materials are rendered most available. Second, as a dressing worked in, it forms a mulch which becomes effective in conserving the soil moisture from losses by evaporation. Third, it darkens the soil sufficiently to absorb the sun's rays and so improve the temperature.

The frequent harrowing is helpful, first, in the assisting in the conserving of the moisture, second, in the promoting the ventilation of the soil, third, in incorporating the manure more efficiently and, fourth, each harrowing results in the destruction of a greater or smaller crop of weeds. And all these four together result in the more complete preparing and storing of available plant food for the young corn plants when they are ready for such supply. Moreover, the destruction of such crops of young weeds reduces the number of weeds so largely that the matter of fighting the weeds later becomes an easy one.

The practice followed by so many farmers of not plowing the clover soil for corn until within a few days of time of planting is seriously objectionable from several standpoints.

It will be argued that it is impossible to do the plowing at the time indicated, and that there is not time to do all the work suggested under the "ideal" method. This MAY be true in some cases, but this makes the ideal method none the less ideal.

Many farmers succeed in growing excellent crops of corn by the old method. It does not follow that they would not grow better crops if they followed the method here described.

CRISP LETTUCE ALL SUMMER IN MICHIGAN GARDENS.

1. Plant a small row every ten days.

2. Thin to three inches apart.

3. When plants begin to crowd, take up each alternate plant for use, allowing the remainder to form heads.

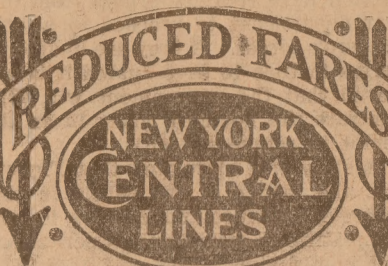

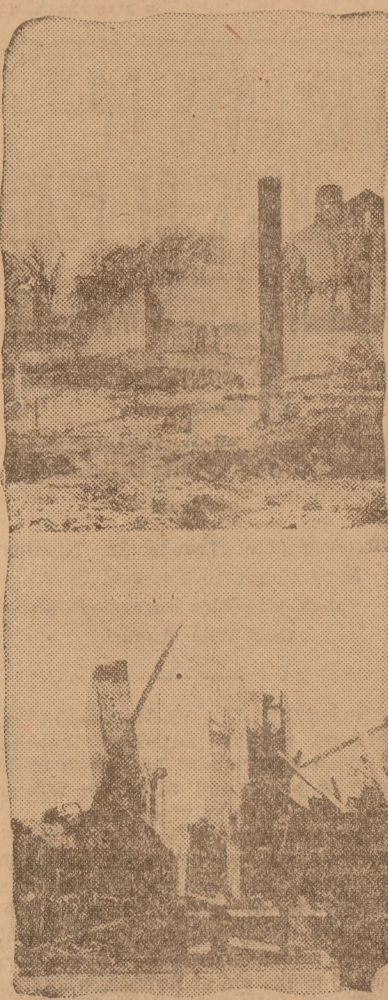

4. Protect from hot sun by means of a cheese cloth screen.

5. Gather for use in the morning when the dew is still on, as it is then crisp and tender.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING REDUCED

Much has been said about the high cost of living, its causes, and the possibilities of its reduction. But little has been said about the most costly leak: the false economy existing today in nearly every household.

Much foodstuffs are bought with but one point in view: "How cheap can I get it?" without a thought of quality or "after cost." One of the most serious is baking powder.

By the use of perfect baking powder the housewife can derive as much economy as from any other article used in baking and cooking. In selecting the baking powder, therefore, care should be exercised to purchase one that retains its original strength and always remains the same, thus making the food sweet and wholesome and producing sufficient leavening gas to make the baking light.

Very little of this leavening gas is produced by the cheap baking powders, making it necessary to use double the quantity ordinarily required to secure good results.

You cannot experiment every time you make a cake or biscuits, or test the strength of your baking powder to find out how much of it you should use; yet with most baking powders you should do this for they are put together so carelessly they are never uniform, the quality and strength varying with each can purchased.

Calumet Baking Powder is made of chemically pure ingredients of tested strength. Experienced chemists put it up. The proportions of the different materials remain always the same. Sealed in air-tight cans, Calumet Baking Powder does not alter in strength and is not affected by atmospheric changes.

In using Calumet you are bound to have uniform bread, cake or biscuits, as Calumet does not contain any cheap, useless or adulterating ingredients so commonly used to increase the weight. Further it produces pure, wholesome food, and is a baking powder of rare merit; therefore is recommended by leading physicians and chemists. It complies with pure food laws, STATE and NATIONAL. The goods are moderate in price, and any lady purchasing Calumet from her grocer, if not satisfied with it, can return it and have her money refunded.

The manufacturers of Calumet Baking Powder has just prepared a new edition of their handsome Cook Book, and will gladly mail it FREE to anyone who sends for it. In writing address the Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago, and ask for Cook Book "D."
